

DREADED SUNDAY PASSES IN ULSTER WITHOUT OUTBREAK

Gravity of Crisis, However, Is Indicated by Fact That King Remains in London Urging Peace.

MORE THAN 100 OFFICERS REFUSE TO OBEY ORDERS

Mutiny in Regular Army Delights Ulster Rebels. Both Sides Working to Avoid Conflict.

London, March 22.—The dreaded Sunday passed without the slightest disturbance in Belfast or in Ulster. But the gravity of the crisis is fully indicated by the fact that the king cancelled his intended week-end visit to the Earl and Countess of Derby at Liverpool. The king and queen also cancelled their proposed visits to the races Thursday and to the grand national race Friday.

The king is strongly advocating conciliation and seems to have made a personal appeal to officers who resolved to resign rather than face the possibility of being called on to fight in Ulster. It is taken for granted that the king is exerting his influence also with his ministers in the same conciliatory direction.

Working to Avoid Conflict.

The desire on both sides that everything possible should be done to avoid any chance of conflict is plain. The nationalists have abandoned their proposed parade at Londonderry, and Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster unionist leader, continues to voice his desire to prevent provocative acts.

The government announces that all intended troop movements in Ireland have been completed, but this may be a decision necessitated by threatened resignations of officers. Apparently no further actual resignations have been offered. Numerous questions to be asked in parliament tomorrow should bring forth reliable information on what at present is a somewhat obscure subject, owing to the heat of party feeling.

As the result of a meeting of the party leaders, Andrew Bonar Law will make the adjournment of the house with a view to obtaining a discussion of the whole situation.

The prime minister conferred for an hour with the king today, and the utmost activity prevails in all government quarters. Among the political leaders tonight, however, the situation is considered more favorable.

An official report issued tonight says all the proposed troop movements in Ulster have been carried out.

"These movements," the report asserts, "were of a purely precautionary nature with the object of giving adequate protection to the depots of arms, ammunition and stores and other government property against possible risks. There has not been and is not now any intention to move troops into Ulster except for these and like purposes."

Premier and King Confer.

Conferences between King George, Premier Asquith and other ministers with reference to the Ulster situation continued all day. Winston Spencer Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, twice visited the prime minister, and Augustine Birrell, chief secretary for Ireland, likewise conferred with Mr. Asquith.

Colonel Seely, secretary of state for war, had a long audience with the king, while Premier Asquith and Field Marshal Sir John French, chief of the general staff, spent an hour at Buckingham palace, after the prime minister had been visited by the Archbishop of Canterbury, head of the English church.

In a general way the situation today seemed easier, the public being inclined to await developments with interest. A statement in the house of commons tomorrow regarding the movement of troops and the resignations of officers.

Berensford Opposes Coercion.

Lord Charles Berensford, a strong Ulster advocate, in a letter to the press, says:

"I know for a fact that many naval officers, including those of high rank and some of the best men we possess, will resign if ordered to take part in the coercion of Ulster, or even if the army alone is utilized for that purpose."

Lord Charles contends that the argument that officers and men who refuse to coerce Ulster might refuse in the future to participate in the quelling of riots does not hold good, there being no comparison, he says, between civil war and a riot.

Speaking of a nationalist demonstration at Glasgow today, Joseph Devlin, M. P. for Belfast, said the Irish party never had asked for an army in Ulster. If the government felt its duty to see that law and order were preserved in the face of threats, the responsibility was the government's. If there should be riot and disorder, the responsibility was the nationalists'.

Defection of the Officers.

What appears to be a reliable account of the defection of the officers at Curragh comes in a Dublin dispatch. On Friday morning the officers received notification from the war office that unless they were prepared for active service in Ulster under certain contingencies, they should send in their papers within twelve hours.

As a result of this notification seventy out of seventy-six officers, including Lord Holmpatrick, resigned. General Sir Arthur Paget then communicated with the war office and subsequently had a conference with the Curragh officers.

General Paget told them that the war office was willing to accept the resignations of General Gough, of the

HOST AND GUEST LEAVE RECEPTION AND GET MARRIED

Augusta, Ga., March 22.—(Special).—Walking out of the rooms where Mrs. J. Willie Levy was entertaining a party of friends tonight in honor of Miss Millie Furst, of Savannah, as though they were going to the veranda, Miss Furst and Dr. Moses Levy continued their walk to the home of Dr. Leo Reichel where they were married.

Miss Furst came to Augusta Thursday as the house guest of Dr. Levy's mother, the couple not having met before. The marriage was an entire surprise, save to the few friends who accompanied Miss Furst and Dr. Levy on their "short walk." The couple left at midnight for Savannah.

Dr. Levy is a well-known young physician. He is associated with Dr. William H. Doughty.

TWO BADLY HURT WHEN CAUGHT ON TRESTLE BY TRAIN

Miss Mabel Bixbie and Edward L. Huie Are Tossed From Seaboard Bridge Into a Deep Gulch.

Edward L. Huie, senior at Tech, and a well-known young man of Morrow, Ga., and Miss Mabel Bixbie, a milliner, of this city, living at 389 Spring street, were seriously injured late Sunday afternoon when the Seaboard Express, No. 5, from New York city to New Orleans, ran them down as they were walking over a trestle near the Empire Cotton Oil company's plant, north of the city.

As the fast train swept around the curve, thirty minutes late, the engine near saw the couple crossing the steel structure. Too late, he blew a warning blast. The couple attempted to escape, but before they ran ten feet the pilot of the engine had tossed them aside and thrown them into a dry gulch.

Accident Stops Train.

Shrieking brakes and jolting cars roused the passengers. As the train came to a sudden stop the crew leaped from the vestibule cars and ran back to the trestle. From that height they saw the huddled forms of Huie and Miss Bixbie.

In the dim light of train lanterns the crew picked their way to the dry creek bed. Huie was found to be in a semi-conscious condition. Miss Bixbie was severely, but not necessarily fatally, hurt. An ambulance was called from the Empire Cotton Oil company office, and the couple rushed to the Atlanta hospital, where Dr. Frank C. Eskridge was hurriedly summoned. Dr. Eskridge declared, after an examination, that Huie had sustained a fractured skull. The physician also stated that he did not as yet know the extent of Miss Bixbie's injuries, but that the young lady may have suffered internal hurt.

Inquiry at the residence where Miss Bixbie lives, at 389 Spring street, brought out the information late last night that the injured girl had not lived long at that address.

Graduates in June.

Huie was to have graduated at Tech school this June. He was contemplating an inspection trip, upon which to base his thesis for graduation, which would be within the next week, having taken him to Baltimore. On Sunday, it is believed that Huie asked Miss Bixbie to accompany him to the Seaboard train, thinking that the young lady may have suffered internal hurt.

Inquiry at the residence where Miss Bixbie lives, at 389 Spring street, brought out the information late last night that the injured girl had not lived long at that address.

IT'S WORK OR MOVE FOR THE UNEMPLOYED

Los Angeles, Cal., March 22.—Amicable relations between the unemployed men encamped in the river bed and the police terminated tonight. Morris Rose, leader of the unemployed, after counting collections taken up at the two mass meetings held by his men in the plaza today, announced he would go before the city council and ask $15,000 to finance the march of 1,500 men some 500 miles north of Sacramento. The daily collections of the "army" yesterday and today amounted to $11,500.

Charles Sebastian, chief of police, learning of Rose's declaration, visited the camp and announced that the men there would be removed tomorrow and if they did not accept would be driven from the city.

The number of men in the unemployed camp has fluctuated widely. At meal time today there probably were 700 men present, but there were hardly fifty when taps was sounded.

VILLA THROWING AROUND TORREON CORDON OF STEEL

Rebel Leader Victorious at All Points of the Advance and the City Will Soon Be Invested.

EARLY FALL OF TORREON PREDICTED BY REBELS

In the Preliminary Skirmishes the Federals Were Surprised and Lost Heavily—Rebel Loss Small.

Constitutionalist Field Base, Bermejillo, Durango, Mexico, March 22.—Having cleared the way for a direct attack on Torreon by his success Friday and Saturday in establishing a base here and driving in the federal advance guard from Matamoros, Tlahualilo, Sacramento, Noe, Britanniam Junction and smaller points in the environs of the Huerta stronghold, General Francisco Villa, the rebel chief, left here today for the south.

The zigzag front of khaki-clad rebels, including the almost naked Indians, who offered their services and those of their horse and arrows, at Chihuahua, a month ago, but who have been given modern uniforms and arms, was nearest the enemy last night at Britanniam Junction, only seven miles north of Torreon. Other columns were fifteen, twenty-two and even more miles away, but all were reported in motion along the route opened by the vanguard, in the direction of Torreon.

Where Federals May Fight.

Before leaving for the front, General Villa said he doubted whether the federals would make further resistance until he starts his assault on their main position, although there were rumors that the enemy would make a show of resistance at Gomez Palacio, a suburb of Torreon, reached by street car, and noted for its big railroad shops. Normally, Gomez Palacio is a junction point, where passengers change cars for Monterey. It lies in the shadow of a great brown bulk of a mountain, known as Cerro La Pila, which the federals are supposed to have fortified. If this proves true, the position must be taken, as the big guns have ample power to cover the three miles between the mountains and Torreon.

It is said the manning of La Pila would be a legitimate part of the defense of Torreon, although the enemy's persuasive isolation would make support from other parts of the federal defenses virtually impossible. The defenders would be in danger of being absolutely cut off, and for this reason the rebels doubt that the enemy, if he really is there, will make more than a long range defense before falling back on the main force.

Country Thickly Settled.

The country-side between Gomez Palacio and Torreon is laced with irrigation ditches and in the irrigating season is rich with cotton and other crops. It is thickly settled and the whitewashed adobe farmhouses fairly sparkle with the sunlight. It is reported the federals have let the water into some of the ditches to impede the rebel advance, while others are being utilized as trenches for the protection of riflemen and rapid-firing guns.

The first important movement of the week just passed took place when General Villa, having appeared suddenly from Chihuahua, set his troops in motion early last Friday morning from Yermo, about 100 miles north of Torreon. Fifteen miles north of this city he came upon a strong advance column of the federals who are believed to have been under orders to retreat on appearance of the enemy. The appearance of the rebels, however, was so sudden that the retreat became almost a rout. The federals, like the rebels, were mounted, and the encounter became a sort of a steep chase, with the pursuers smothered in the dust kicked up by their mounts, firing blindly from the saddle, not in the least impeded by the scattered bullets which the federals sometimes turned to fire.

Fight Continues at Gallop.

The fight continued at a gallop right into the street of this little city and here it was that most of the federal losses occurred. The bodies of 103 were picked up by Villa's men. The federals are believed to have carried off those who were wounded in this city, as only three were found. The rebel loss was virtually nothing.

On the heels of the cavalry came other troops, and General Benavides with a superior force was sent by rail against Tlahualilo, a town northeast of Bermejillo.

At a great irrigation ditch shortly after leaving Bermejillo, Benavides came upon a federal force which he estimated to number 400. An hour's engagement ensued as a result of which the rebel commander reported to General Villa the rout of the enemy, leaving ninety dead on the field. His own losses, he reported as three killed and seven wounded.

This force of government troops seems to have been far in advance of support, and the town of Tlahualilo was garrisoned by a rebel squad without resistance.

Occupied Without Fight.

Meanwhile General Herrera occupied Santa Clara and sent a force to bridge the ditch where Benavides had vanquished opposition. Another force of rebels under General Urbina in the midst of these exciting events, had been moving on Matamoros, one of the most important cities in the Torreon district, and occupied it without a fight. Urbina was reported ill today but his

DETECTIVE BURNS GOES TO NEW YORK TO HUNT EVIDENCE

Leonard Haas Left for Gotham on Sunday Morning and Sleuth Will Leave This Morning.

Detective William J. Burns and Leonard Haas are going to New York to investigate the same phase of the Frank case which Attorney Luther Z. Rosser and Herbert J. Haas probed several weeks ago during their journey to the metropolis.

This was the information which prevailed in various offices of the defense Sunday. Leonard Haas left Atlanta for Gotham Sunday morning. Burns remained, however, until this morning, when he departs at 11:01 o'clock on the New York-Atlanta special.

The particular angle of the Frank case, which exists in New York, has been shrouded in secrecy. Detective Burns himself declared to reporters that it will be one of the most important of his entire investigation. His proposed probe of it is expected to last three days or more.

Does Osborn Figure?

It has been rumored, while neither verified nor denied, that the New York end of the investigation is a bit of reported evidence against tactics of the prosecution of Leo Frank. The handwriting expert, W. M. Osborn, of New York, is said to be a principal in the affair.

On the other hand, it is likely that Burns and Haas go to New York to examine Nina Formby and H. F. Becker, the two witnesses who have furnished newly-discovered evidence for the convicted superintendent's defense. That Burns is probing the rumors of a police "frame-up" is obvious from his investigations in Atlanta during the past week.

The Formby woman is the strongest accuser of police tactics. She swears in a sensational affidavit that Detectives W. A. Cheving and J. H. Norris coerced her, under threat of deprivation of police protection, to swear to a false story against Frank, Cheving and Norris have also been accused by other witnesses.

Rosser and Herbert Haas have never revealed the cause of their trip to New York, although it was generally known that they went to investigate certain phases of the case that had a New York source. Each of these men have held frequent conferences with Burns since their return from New York.

Expect Important Evidence.

It is said that the evidence Burns expects to secure on his New York trip will be undoubtedly the strongest arguments in the application for a new trial to be submitted before Judge Ben Hill by Burns's counsel. Immediately upon finishing his work in Manhattan, Burns will return to Atlanta to resume his local inquiry.

Burns spent most of Sunday working in co-operation with C. W. Burke, a detective attached to the offices of Luther Z. Rosser. The two traveled over the city in Burke's automobile. When seen at the Georgian Terrace late Sunday afternoon by a Constitution reporter, Burns and Burke were leaving the hotel in the machine.

"Give my regards to Bill Smith," said the detective laughingly.

"And, by the way, Mr. Burns," the reporter replied, "do you care to make an answer to Mr. Smith's card?"

"No," he answered. "Smith is right."

Justice Van Geisen Dies Just as His Citizenship Had Been Restored Him

Savannah, Ga., March 22.—(Special).—Frank S. Van Geisen, the Savannah magistrate who was fined $500 several months ago and removed from office for malfeasance, died this morning. Just a day after Governor Slaton removed his political disabilities.

Van Geisen, who was indicted on eleven charges of malfeasance and one of usury, pleaded guilty to one of the malfeasance charges, and Judge Charlton, in the supreme court, made the fine as light as possible. The sentence provided that he could never hold office again. Governor Slaton was induced to restore him to citizenship. Van Geisen was one of the best known men in this section.

WILL URGE SALE OF FIRE PROPERTY

Lee Will Ask Disposal of Carnegie Way and Pryor Street Lots and Purchase of Others.

Sale of part of the most centrally located property belonging to the Atlanta fire department and rearrangement of the city's fire station districts, are schemes which Chairman Jesse Lee of the council fire committee, is going to propose at a meeting of the committee, Wednesday afternoon.

Councilman Lee believes the city should dispose of the Pryor street property and also the Carnegie Way house.

"The city has owned the property many years and both places have enhanced in value to such an extent that I now believe it advisable to move them," Councilman Lee said. "The Pryor street house can be removed to another street close to the present location, and the city can realize a handsome profit by the exchange. The same disposition can be made of the Carnegie Way house."

Councilman Lee will also urge that the city motorize all its fire apparatus.

He proposes to have council to authorize the board of fire commissioners of the horse-drawn apparatus. Councilman Lee says the city will save thousands of dollars annually by using all motor trucks.

Councilman Lee will also ask the committee to revise the theater laws so as to afford patrons of picture shows better protection.

FREE TOLLS—FIGHT THROWS CONGRESS INTO UGLY SNARL

Opponents of Repeal Declare That They Are Gaining Ground—They Are Working to Delay Action.

Washington, March 22.—Believing the foreign policy of the administration depends on the vote on the repeal of the Panama tolls exemption, President Wilson and his advisers in consultation today canvassed the situation.

It is unusual for the president to be at his office on Sunday, but he spent most of the afternoon there with Postmaster General Burleson and Secretary Tumulty. They talked with administration leaders in congress and learned that while there was little reason to doubt the ultimate triumph of the repeal, a stubborn opposition had arisen, particularly in the house, and that those in charge of the administration fight there would have to work hard to overcome it.

Opposed by Democratic Leaders.

One of the peculiar phases of the situation is that Speaker Clark, Majority Leader Underwood, Representative Kitchen, Representative Fitzgerald and others usually aligned with the administration in its policies, are opposing it now. With this opposition are many republicans and progressives, and the probability of a close vote is increasing daily. It generally is admitted among the president's friends that he is confronted with the most serious opposition he has encountered, and they point out that the general effect on the nation's foreign relations in the event of the failure of the repeal would surely lead to considerable embarrassment in various other diplomatic questions now pending.

Believing that their cause is gradually gaining ground in congress, opponents of the proposed repeal of the toll exemption provision of the Panama canal act expressed satisfaction today over repeated delays in getting the controversy directly before congress.

Working on the Wavering.

They are earnestly at work in the meantime on senators and representatives who still are wavering.

There are some members in both senate and house who really have not decided what to do is claimed by leading opponents of the repeal, despite the repeated publication of polls on the issue tending to show large majorities for repeal. As the fight against the repeal progresses, those who are directing the opposition maintain their propaganda is producing results and that some surprises are in store for the administration before the controversy is settled. On the other hand, administration champions, while well aware that the fight is the most stubborn and unyielding that has developed since the democratic party came into power, insist that repeal of toll exemption will triumph and that final action cannot be delayed many more weeks.

Fillbuster Is Charged.

Charged that some of the democratic and republican opponents of the repeal in the house are deliberately fillbustering on the rivers and harbors appropriation bill in order to prevent action on the repeal, continued to be heard today. Failure to complete the bill yesterday made it impossible to take up, as originally planned, the Sims bill and it was announced tonight that the repeal cannot be taken up tomorrow, Monday being reserved for District of Columbia legislation. Consideration of the rivers and harbors bill will be resumed Tuesday.

FLAMES DESTROY ATHLETIC CLUB'S EAST LAKE HOME

Blaze, Which Started From Defective Wiring, Discovered by E. H. Matthews, Manager Country House.

$75,000 DAMAGE DONE; INSURANCE IS $45,000

Watchman Fires Revolver to Notify Members Who Lived in House—Auto Parties See Conflagration.

The East Lake Country clubhouse of the Atlanta Athletic club was totally destroyed last night when a fire started in the kitchen from defective wiring.

The fire was first discovered at 10:45 o'clock by E. H. Matthews, who is manager of the country clubhouse. By 11:30 o'clock the building was a total loss, the chemical fire extinguishers failing to work.

The loss will reach fully $75,000, including the cost of the club, its fixtures, furnishings and extensions which have been recently added as improvements, and the personal loss to members of the club who lost their golf clubs and athletic apparel.

The clubhouse was erected in 1905, and was practically new. The construction alone of the house cost $43,000. On the club's books the furnishings are valued at $18,000. Insurance was carried to the extent of $46,000, leaving a dead loss of fully $25,000.

Alarm Members of Club.

Matthews was in the act of closing up the clubhouse for the night when he thought he smelled smoke. Upon investigating he discovered that it was coming out of the wall behind the ice box in the kitchen, which was fully 15 feet away from the kitchen fire. He spread the alarm and the night watchman began shooting his revolver to awake any one of the club members who might have been spending the night, and already retired.

Walter Richards, Richard Henry, members of the club; George Black, golf assistant, and Henry Davis, a waiter, were at the clubhouse, and rushed to the aid of Matthews. With the use of axes, the walls behind the ice box were cut through, and water thrown into the opening. The fire had evidently been burning for some time, though, as just as soon as the opening was made flames leaped out of the walls, and soon spread over the entire building.

The house was quickly engulfed in flames. Many people came out from Atlanta in automobiles who were attracted by the flames, which could be seen from the city.

Very Little Saved.

Very little furniture was saved, only a few chairs and a set of golf sticks being carried out. Practically the only things of any value that were saved were the golf clubs of George Adair and Stewart Maiden. These clubs were in Maiden's workshop, and George Black, Maiden's assistant, and Willis Jones rushed into the shop, which was the last part of the building to catch fire, and carried these clubs out.

Walter Rogers, seeing the flames from his home in East Lake, telephoned fire engine house No. 12, corner Moreland and DeKalb avenues, and the hook and ladder wagon made the trip of 6 miles to the club. On their arrival there was no chance to save the club.

Will Rebuild at Once.

B. E. Thrasher, secretary of the club, stated that he believed the board of directors would commence the erection of a new clubhouse in the course of a few days.

Practically every golf enthusiast of the club has lost his set of golf sticks. There were fully 300 sets of golf sticks lost, which, valued at $25 a set, would constitute an approximate loss of $7,500.

The clubhouse, which was originally used as the clubhouse before the erection of the one destroyed by fire, was not burned, but threatened to catch fire several times from flying sparks. The dead grass on the golf links across the lake from the clubhouse caught fire, forming a picturesque scene.

NEGRO IS LYNCHED FOR KILLING ITALIAN

Inverness, Miss., March 22.—An unidentified negro, arrested yesterday charged with the killing of Samuel Lusco, who was in charge of a car of fruit en route from New Orleans to Memphis, was taken from the town jail last night by a mob and hanged from a railroad trestle.

The negro, employed by Lusco as a helper, shot and killed his employer. It is alleged, while the train to which his cargo was attached was en route from Inverness to Isola, presumably for the purpose of robbery. He was arrested at Isola and returned to Inverness, where he was placed in the rather frail jail, from which he was taken last night, a mob forcing an entrance to the prison.

So far as can be ascertained efforts to establish the identity of the members of the mob have been without result.

FRANCE IS ABSORBED BY CALMETTE TRAGEDY

Protests That Madame Caillaux Is Unduly Favored in the Prison.

Paris, March 22.—The killing last week of Gaston Calmette, editor of The Figaro, by Madame Caillaux, wife of the former minister of finance, continues to absorb both the public and the newspapers. Interest in the case, which had been diverted by the investigation into the postponement of the trial of M. Roquette, charged with extensive swindling operations, today again was focused on Madame Caillaux's prison life.

Protests that Madame Caillaux is receiving excessive favors and comforts in Saint Lazare prison today assumed formidable proportions. The chief of the penitentiary department of the ministry of the interior declared today that Madame Caillaux was being treated in accordance with the prison regulations. He added that the prison doctor was the sole judge of many of the details of the prisoners' regime.

All was quiet today along the approaches to Saint Lazare prison. In spite of the fact that the novelty of seeing M. Caillaux entering the jail to see his wife has about ended, a strong force of police was kept on duty in the vicinity of the jail to prevent possible disturbance.

She Moaned During Night.

Madame Caillaux passed a restless night following the lengthy examination she underwent yesterday. The occupant of a neighboring cell said she heard Madame Caillaux moaning and complaining of a headache during the night. Madame Caillaux arose at 5 o'clock. The other prisoners are up at 6. She had little appetite for breakfast and declared she was suffering from a severe headache. She declined to see the prison doctor, however.

While the other prisoners were at mass, Madame Caillaux dressed herself in the clothes she wore the day she shot M. Calmette and at 3:30 o'clock went into the chapel, where a special mass was said for her and a few spiritual sisters. Caillaux followed the service with the deepest devotion.

After mass Madame Caillaux attended to her bulky correspondence in the cell fitted up as a writing room. Her 19-year-old daughter, Germaine Clémence, accompanied by her governess, visited her mother, and when she was leaving the prison came upon a group of reporters. The governess tried to hurry past with her charge, saying, "We have nothing to tell you."

Girl Asks Pity for Mother.

The girl, however, in answer to inquiries regarding her mother's health, said timidly, "My mother is a little tired this morning. Then she has been away she turned and said, with a pathetic gesture: 'Give her your pity, for she is very unhappy.'"

M. Caillaux called in the afternoon and remained with his wife for about an hour.

There is much discussion over the possible outcome of the investigation by the committee of the chamber of deputies. M. Jaurès, the presiding officer, is of the opinion that the postponement of the election will make impossible the submission of a detailed report on the case. The committee will, however, submit a report on the case at the end of the week. The opinion is gaining ground that the committee will postpone the elections for a fortnight.

The committee tomorrow will examine the evidence. It will hear M. Caillaux, as well as M. Briand and M. Barthou.

She Practiced with Pistol.

After the shooting of M. Calmette, the Figaro said witnesses would be called to prove that Mme. Caillaux had practiced with a revolver at the shooting range of a well-known gunmaker. A newspaper correspondent, M. de Tredern, has authorized it to state that he was in the shop of the gunmaker in question at the moment of the shooting of M. Calmette and while he did not actually see Mme. Caillaux practice with a pistol she had just bought, he met her coming up from the basement of the shop, where there is a target range. She was accompanied by a gentleman, according to the statement attributed to the Viscount de Tredern, her hands were soiled from handling the weapon and she requested permission to wash them.

The Figaro announces that it is about to start libel suits against a number of leading London, Berlin, Vienna, Geneva and other newspapers which it declares, have given prominence to reports that the Figaro possesses private letters reflecting on M. and Mme. Caillaux, which it intends to publish.

Life Should Last 100 Years.

(London Cor. New York Sun.)

"Don't stop short at 70, do more of it," remarked a certain Englishman a few days ago, and Sir James Crichton-Browne, an acknowledged authority on longevity, agrees with Sir Gilbert Throgmouther.

"If you want a feeble and miserable old age, give up working," said Sir James, who, although born as long ago as 1849, is one of the busiest men in the kingdom today. The most successful period of human life in its entirety is obviously between 25 and 40 years of age," he said. "But to say that men above the latter age are comparatively useless is to fly in the face of the facts of life. Much of the best work of the world has been done by men over 40, and we should be back in the twilight ages if bereft of what these men accomplished."

"Musical expression, like speech, reaches its acme in late middle life. But higher in the central hierarchy than speech or music centers are others concerned in the manifestation of purely intellectual power—such as reason and judgment, which comes to perfection late, and may long preserve their integrity. A preponderance of the work involving calm and powerful reason is done by men from 55 to 70 years of age. The judicial system in this country has been built up mainly by judges from 55 to 80 years of age, and in almost all countries the most momentous affairs of state have been reserved for the decision of men at this time of life. The man of mature years, therefore, treasured in old age, may be preserved intact. Dr. Dollinger, when 70 years old and cured by insomnia, learned by heart three books and the Odyssey in order that he might be able to repeat them to himself in the silent watches of the night. Henry Dandole, Gibbon tells us, was elected doge of Venice when 80 and lived till 97, shining in his last years as one of the most illustrious men of his time.

"The way to make old age peevish and repulsive is to rob it of the hopes by which it is sustained and tranquilized. Depend on it, the best antidote against senile decay is an active interest in human affairs, and those keep the youngest longest, who have most. It is a cogent argument against celibacy and the limitation of families that they deprive old age of those vernal influences in which parents renew their youth. We are justified in holding that, given favorable conditions and lasting accidents, 100 years is the normal duration of human life, the goal which we should hold in view and at which we should make our footsteps right, are ever in the number of men and women should arrive."

Sir James added that very often old age was made feeble and despicable because of the maladies of early life. All these maladies leave their footprints behind them, and in aged men were often found the tracks of measles or the marks of whooping cough.

Bulgar Queen to Visit America

QUEEN ELEONORA OF BULGARIA.

Queen Eleonora of Bulgaria, accompanied by her husband, King Ferdinand, will probably be begun about the middle of May, and it will last six or eight weeks. The purposes which Queen Eleonora and King Ferdinand will achieve by this visit are two-fold. In the first place, they are hoping that the queen will be able to counteract the antagonistic feeling to Bulgaria which may have resulted from the Balkan wars and to show that the Bulgarians are not such barbarians as they are painted. An even more utilitarian purpose is the study which the queen proposes to make of the manner in which the United States is working out social and economic problems and draw lessons applicable to Bulgaria, which is now confronted with an economic problem of great magnitude. Queen Eleonora will be the first reigning sovereign of Europe to visit the United States. She is known all over Europe as the "royal nurse." She is every inch a queen, of regal, commanding appearance. This second wife of King Ferdinand is an extremely practical woman, and in nursing, for which she was scientifically trained, she is not content to leave the actual work to others. In the Russo-Japanese and the Balkan wars she worked herself in bandaging wounds as well as directing other nurses.

New Dances Are Outgrowth Of Ragtime, Says O'Brien

"Lucien, this old town seems to be getting some class to her in these modern days."

It was Nell O'Brien talking. He was giving a glance for the last time at the Piedmont hotel menu, last perchance he might have overlooked something. He was talking to Lucien Turk, one of Mr. O'Brien's old-time Atlanta friends, of whom there are many for Mr. O'Brien has been coming to Atlanta off and on, as they say, for the last twenty years.

"My eye just fell on this nightingale announcement," continued Mr. O'Brien. "It looks like a metropolitan city all right."

Mr. Turk then asked Mr. O'Brien his opinion of the new dances.

"Why they are simply an outgrowth of modern ragtime music," he said. "The tango, the fox-trot, the waltz, the least vulgar, but is one of the prettiest dances I have ever seen."

"He was humming the 'Blue Danube Waltz' and waving his hand rhythmically."

"Can you imagine a strain like that producing a tango?" he asked.

LONDON GIRLS CRAZY ABOUT RUSS DANCER

Young Nijinsky Followed Everywhere by Female Members of Smart Set.

London, March 22.—Society has lost its head, they say, over the Russian dancer, Nijinsky. Society girls waylay him with an excuse that they want his autograph. At his last performance last night six of them formed a cordon around him plying him with questions. He was inundated with invitations, gifts of flowers and jewels, and he undoubtedly has cut out the smart set with the master. He is the son of the season in the drawing rooms of Mayfair, if he is willing.

A duchess, who was giving an impromptu party, put on her cards. "To meet M. Nijinsky," the dancer having promised her he would turn up. At the last moment he forgot all about it. He was supping with a merry group of Russians in a Bohemian restaurant when he thought of the duchess and her party. He rushed to the nearest telephone, ringing up the duchess, apologized profusely. He said if she asked him again he would not only go, but dance for her, so she was quite comforted, though the guests were not. He confided to a press woman that all American women were charming and were only beaten in their beauty and fascination by Russian and Polish women. He looks very solemn off the stage and does not suggest being happy.

Queen Alexandra, who has heard a great deal about him from her sister, the Dowager Empress of Russia, is very anxious to see him dance, and it is quite likely he may be invited to the Marlborough house to perform with his winged feet.

No Alms if You Keep a Dog.

Far and Fireside says: "New laws are not always good, but what is wrong with the law which passed in a Kansas county under which no family owning a dog can receive relief from a poor house? It is a luxury, but poor people ought not to be deprived of their simple luxuries because they are poor. But a badly fed and badly kept dog is a pest to the neighborhood."

Ever Notice It?

A little kidding now and then is relieved by a lot of men. But when you try to kid them, gee! They get as sore as you can be.

DORR DIES THIS WEEK

IN THE ELECTRIC CHAIR

Boston, March 22.—His appeal for executive clemency having failed, William A. Dorr, a wealthy, well-known manufacturer of Lynn, Mass., was sentenced to the electric chair at Charlestown state prison for the fulfillment of a sentence of death.

He may be electrocuted any night this week. In accordance with the law, providing for secrecy, the date has not been announced.

Dorr's crime was the killing April 1912 of George E. Marsh, a wealthy retired soap manufacturer of Lynn, Mass., was trustee of a fund of $100,000 for Miss Orpha Marsh, of Boston, an aunt of Dorr, who lived at her home. It was the contention of the government that the motive for killing Marsh lay in Dorr's knowledge that this fund would go to his aunt on the death of its custodian, Marsh's death, it would revert to him.

Dorr came early in April, 1912, to a party introduced by the trial purporting to have been kept by him, described in detail how he had trailed the aged millionaire day by day, in it references were made to "doing the job," and to the satisfaction of the writer that it was "all over." The last entry was dated the day of the murder.

Dorr fled after the killing and was captured a week later at Stockton, on the way west he had mailed the diary to his aunt. He asserted in court that it was written after Marsh's death with the idea of placing himself in a more favorable light with his aunt. The defense advanced the claim that it indicated an unsound mind.

It appeared in evidence that Dorr invited Marsh to ride with him. When they were speeding over the road, adjoining the West Lynn marshes, the trial, according to Dorr's testimony, a struggle followed, Marsh was shot to death. Dorr contended that he acted in self-defense.

Very Much So.

"It is not worth while to reason with these hard-headed Scotchmen about 'man's suffering.'"

"No, as I judge from recent events, that they would answer reasoning on the subject with knock-down arguments."

Wants a Clean Show.

"The minstrel show is the only theatrical production to which America can lay sole claim to originating."

he said. For that reason I do not care to see it produce any more, but fashion than just as the old-fashioned minstrel, only always striving for a higher plane."

"And beyond everything," he said, "I see to it that my show is clean. It is clean from any suggestive word or song."

"In the first place, a suggestive joke is 'reflected' on any show, and in the second place you can't get away with it. People go away with a bad taste in the mouth."

"So, I've got a good clean show, and I can get a laugh out of some gray-haired old lady or gentleman or some little child, I shall feel myself rewarded for my work. I love a laugh from those because it is always a sincere laugh."

ALL THE RADIUM SUPPLY CONTROLLED BY EUROPE

Director Holmes Says Americans Failed to Recognize Importance of Radium.

Washington, March 22.—How the American people failed to recognize the importance of radium as a cancer cure until European countries had obtained virtually all of the present available supply, is graphically told in the annual report of Joseph A. Holmes, director of the federal bureau of mines, made public tonight. The report tells in detail of the bureau's unsuccessful efforts to obtain a quantity of radium sufficient to supply the twenty or more hospitals of the public health service and "serve, in part, to meet the needs of the various cancer hospitals of the country."

Director Holmes estimates that "in the United States 75,000 persons die each year from cancer." Explaining that radium is considered the most promising cure for certain types of cancer, the director says the most serious barrier to progress in demonstrating this is the scarcity of radium. The report attracted unusual interest, as congress is preparing to enact legislation to develop and conserve the country's radium resources.

Little Radium Available.
"There probably is not more than thirty grams of radium now available for use in such treatment in all countries," the report says. "Of this amount there probably is not more than two grams of radium bromide in the United States, in the hands of a few surgeons. Probably fifteen grams of radium bromide was produced during 1912, and of this fifteen grams nearly 11.3 grams were extracted in various European countries from ores shipped to them from the United States, mainly from Colorado and Utah."

"During 1913 there was a total production of 2,140 tons of radium-bearing ores in the United States, of which about 45 per cent of the ores and a little more than 50 per cent of the radium content were shipped abroad. Since a new plant is being erected at Liverpool by an English corporation controlling sixty claims in Colorado and Utah, and because of larger purchases of ores by other foreign corporations, the exports of radium promise to be much larger in 1914."

"Meanwhile American hospitals are vainly endeavoring to purchase and bring back to the United States for their own use some small part of this radium, even at such prices as $10,000 to $150,000 per gram, or $500,000 to $800,000 for the five grams of radium that a large hospital should have or have access to for special cases."

Treatment of Radium Ores.
"No detailed information concerning the methods of treating these radium-bearing ores being obtainable, the bureau of mines has endeavored to develop a process of its own, which, if successful, will be made public, for general use. Presumably the process has been slow. It is believed that with large facilities made available the bureau can extract from ores already belonging to the government a quantity of radium that, placed at the disposal of the public health service at its various hospitals, will in part serve to meet the needs of the various cancer hospitals of the country."

Referring to the bureau's activities in preventing unnecessary waste of the nation's mineral resources, Director Holmes says that last year there was saved in Oklahoma alone $10,000,000 worth of natural gas. The waste of this product that still continues annually in Oklahoma is estimated to be from $10,000,000 to $20,000,000, and in all the fields of the country it reaches a total of $50,000,000.

"A few more years of further delay and this valuable source of national wealth will have been wasted—a permanent loss," the report adds.

The director estimates the unnecessary waste of coal at 250,000,000 tons annually. He expresses the opinion that an investigation costing probably $50,000 would result in a saving of $50,000,000 long term.

BODY OF BABY FOUND; POLICE INVESTIGATING

At the county granite quarry, which is just off Ashby street, near the corner of Mayson Turner avenue, two small white boys Sunday found a shoebox, which was concealed under the ledge of a big rock. In it was the body of a baby boy. At one end of the box was written in a flourishing hand the word "Empty," and at the other end of the box were the numbers "41,227 and 41,228."

The two boys, Bert Jerald, of 145 Mayson Turner avenue, and Ralph Smith, of 135 Mayson Turner avenue, were playing on the large rocks when they noticed the shoebox marked "Empty."

Detectives have been put to work on the case. About the only clues they have is the handwriting on the box, which indicates that it was written by a man or some one of education.

DREADED SUNDAY WITHOUT OUTBREAK

Third Cavalry brigade, and the senior officer of his staff, Major Kearsley, but that the others would be individually liable for their refusal to serve, which meant they might be court-martialed.

General Gough and Major Kearsley declined to accept the offer of special treatment and said they would stand or fall by their brother officers.

Merely to Protect Property.
General Paget gave assurance that the movement of troops to Ulster was intended merely for the protection of government property and on this assurance the officers eventually agreed to proceed to Ulster for police duty, but resolutely refused to undertake hostilities against the Ulster loyalists.

This decision was forwarded in a special message to London, and General Gough and the colonels of the other regiments were summoned by the war office to proceed to London. It is understood that there are additional provisional resignations from other regiments and that the government has decided that the officers domiciled in Ulster will not be compelled to undertake active service against their will, but will be given the option of resignation from the army or prolonged leave of absence.

The regulation governing the officers' position is as follows: "An officer shall not be permitted to retire voluntarily unless it is deemed expedient by the army council."

MUTINY IN THE ARMY CAUSES JOY IN ULSTER

Belfast, March 22.—The defection of army officers is the cause of great jubilation in Ulster and among the officials of the provisional government, who are keeping in close touch with events at Curragh and other military depots in Ireland through secret correspondence.

The Associated Press tonight was shown a letter which the provisional authorities have received from an officer at the Curragh station, saying that more than 100 officers had resigned, including all the cavalry officers. General Sir Arthur Paget, commanding the troops in Ireland, had then paraded and told them, according to the letter, that he had "an express order and request from the king himself to ask every officer to go as ordered; that they might never be called on to fight and that if they refused to go there might be a mutiny in the army, which would mean a revolution in England, and in six weeks there would be no king and no army."

Officers Quit the Army.
Despite this appeal the officers refused to reconsider their resignations. A general officer of high standing in the regular army was offered the post of commander-in-chief of the force which is to operate against the Ulster Volunteers. When he declined the offer the war office informed him that his refusal meant the severance of his connection with the army. He persisted, and the authorities offered the post to another officer, said to be General Friend, now commanding at Belfast, who accepted.

A denial was issued today of the reported mutiny of the Dorsetshire regiment. Frequent reports have been current of the strong sympathy of the Dorset men with the Ulsterists, owing to their extended stay in the garrison here. The same partisanship has been ascribed to the Norfolks, causing the authorities keen anxiety. Officers of these regiments were asked today if they would remain loyal to the king, and it is understood they agreed to stand fast.

NEW BASIS IS COMING FOR COTTON MARKET

Trade Is Able to Figure Fairly Accurately Supply Available for Mills.

New Orleans, La., March 22.—The cotton market this week will get down to a new basis. All of the reports concerning growth this season are out of the way and the trade is able to figure out fairly accurately the supply available for the mills of the world to work on. The question of consumption will still be in dispute, but aside from this, there will be a general tendency to take increasing interest in the new crop outlook.

While it is yet too early for weather markets, more or less influence will come from the weather over Texas. Delay already has been reported in getting the crop out of the ground in the southern counties of that state because of too low temperatures and it even has been reported that some young cotton has been killed by the cold. Continued low temperatures will have a stimulating effect on the market while warmer weather would encourage the bear side. The advantage would appear to be with the long side for the first day or two of the week because of the cold weather at the end of last week, which probably will result in bullish crop accounts.

The spot demand and end of March export shipments will be features of interest this week. Bulls expect both to be strong. Exports thus far this season of American cotton total 7,400,277 bales, against 6,990,159 a year ago, and 8,674,153 two years ago. This means that exports are on the basis of 5,000,000 bales for the season. Two years ago the movement amounted to 10,500,000 bales. Students of the market think that no such movement is possible this season if American mills are going to take the 4,000,000 bales their present consumption rate points to. Bears are of the opinion that following the filling of March shipments both the spot demand and the export movement will fall off. They consider that April will be the dull month it usually is in the new department.

Liquidation of the March position in the future market may be attended by more or less excitement. Bulls appear to have the advantage and other months may derive strength from developments in the current option.

Negro Girl Killed.

Thomson, Ga., March 22.—(Special.)—On Saturday evening about 10 o'clock Nellie Rochelle, a young negro girl, was shot dead at her home in "Shaker" neighborhood, Thomson's district, by Hanson Shields, a negro man about 22 years old, according to statements made by two other negroes who were present. Shields made his escape and so far has not been captured.

MRS. J. W. HURT SINGS AT THE ORGAN RECITAL

One of the most effective of the Kraft organ recitals yet presented was heard on Sunday afternoon at the Auditorium.

The number on the program which elicited the most applause and by the same standard met with the greatest favor was the "Ave Maria," the work of the well-known Atlanta composer, George F. Lindner. Mrs. J. W. Hurt, whose soprano voice has such unusual range, sang this number, while Lindner played a violin obbligato. Miss Eda Bartholomew was at the piano and City Organist Edwin Arthur Kraft presided at the organ.

The "Rhapsody" of Cole, dedicated to Organist Kraft, was also well received. Three other numbers rendered by Mrs. Hurt received full stint of praise. While the Sunday audience was not particularly large it made up in appreciation what it lacked in numbers.

Rev. Luther R. Bridges Opens Revival Meeting At the First Methodist

Rev. Luther R. Bridges, who is conducting a two weeks' series of revival meetings at the First Methodist church, spoke last night to a large audience upon "Experimental Religion."

Mr. Bridges is an eloquent evangelist. Although he is perhaps 30 years old, his youthful appearance is responsible for his sometimes being called, the "Boy Preacher." Mr. Bridges is also a singer of fine quality, and in the midst of his sermon last night, sang an impressive solo, entitled "Peace."

Mr. Bridges will preach every morning at 10:30 o'clock, and in the evening at 7:45. At tonight's service, the Win-One quartet of the Central Baptist church, will sing.

The End of the Opportunity to purchase the new Encyclopaedia Britannica at low prices will soon be reached. An increase of $29 to $50 a set will then be made in the price. You will effect a substantial saving by buying now.

The Editor or Journalist or any wide-awake Writer or Reader will benefit by using The New Encyclopaedia Britannica (11th Edition) because it is different from any other work of reference, especially in being clearly, attractively written by great authorities, chosen from all over the world, who know their special subjects and know how to tell about them to other people.

For instance, in the Britannica, the article NEWSPAPERS is by Lord Northcliffe, H. H. Chisholm, former editor, "St. James Gazette," and now day-editor, "London Times," and C. K. Shorter, editor "The Sphere."

TYPOGRAPHY (60,000 words) is by J. H. Hassell, author of "Gutenberg—an Historical Investigation," John Southward, author of "A Dictionary of Typography," and H. M. Ross, editor "London Times Engineering Supplement."

And there is the same constant note of authority in all other subjects in the Britannica—whether you turn to it for information about paper or bookbinding or libraries; for a critical summary of the career of a figure in the French Revolution or in the history of Japan; for a biography of Benjamin Franklin, or Horace Greeley, or Charles A. Dana, or E. L. Godkin, or Henry J. Raymond; for impressionism or post-impressionism in painting; for the location and importance of an out-of-the-way town in Australia or in Zanzibar; for a point of law bearing on a will, a poisoning case or an insurance fraud; or for a description of the manufacture of leather, or sugar, or sulphuric acid.

A Model of Good Literary Style

The Britannica is different also in being well-written. Among its contributors on literary subjects were such masters of style as Henry Van Dyke, George W. Cable, E. E. Hale, Swinburne, R. L. Stevenson, George E. Woodberry, Henry Cabot Lodge, William Sharp, Mrs. Humphry Ward, Watts-Dunton, Prof. Saintsbury, Leslie Stephen, Edmund Gosse. Its articles are models of good style, as well as authoritative statements of facts.

The World Today in the New Encyclopaedia Britannica

The recent industrial and social changes in all lands; recent wars, treaties, and conventions; recent progress in the development of literature, of art, pure and applied; the new interpretations in religion and philosophy—in fact, the whole story of all that is interesting and important in the prodigious activities in every department of the world's life are here stated clearly by authorities.

Its 44,000,000 words, 40,000 articles by 1,500 contributors picked from the whole world, by a remarkable and different kind of book manufacture—the use of thin, opaque, beautifully printed India paper—are put into 29 handy, convenient volumes, each only an inch thick. The set is easy to read, to consult, to handle, to house.

PROPOSAL BY ASQUITH ON IRISH QUESTION

London, March 23.—The Daily Chronicle, the government organ, says it learns from Asquith will make an important statement with reference to the Irish question, in the House of Commons, on Friday, probably in July, on condition that unionists will co-operate in passing the plural vote and the discovery of an Irish disestablishment bills at this session of parliament.

GOVERNMENT BLAMED BY CARDINAL GIBBONS

Baltimore, March 22.—Cardinal Gibbons tonight commented on the Ulster situation as follows: "To my mind it appears that the government is to blame for not taking the upholding and restoring peace. It could do this if it went about it in the right way. It is only a small proportion of the population of Ireland engaged in the present uprising, and the government permits it to dictate what should be done and what should not be done."

"Of course I pray that there will be a peaceful settlement."

Presbytery Will Pass Today on California Call for Dr. Walker

At a meeting of the Atlanta presbytery to be held at the Central Presbyterian church this morning at 10:30 o'clock, the question of releasing Dr. Hugh Walker, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of this city, for the purpose of allowing him to accept a call from the First Presbyterian church of Long Beach, which he has expressed a desire to answer in the affirmative, will be taken up.

Dr. Walker, in his sermons of Sunday, did not refer to the meeting to be held today nor did he express himself any further in regard to his personal wishes in the matter.

In a statement to the presbytery, said Dr. Walker last night, in that statement I will probably ask once more to be released, answer the Long Beach call. I believe that my wife's health will be greatly benefited by our removal there. At the same time I deeply appreciate what kind friends here have done in their effort to keep me here. Rest is a touching thing to me, and my words cannot tell just how much this meant to me.

You should prepare now for the summer supply of hot water, when the kitchen fire is out.

There are several kinds of gas water heaters available for home service, all of which we would be pleased to show you. One of the new devices is called the Ruud Cottage Heater.

The Cottage Heater, in addition to giving you perfect hot water, provides a perpetual service which goes on day in and day out with the same precision and lack of attention. You marvel at the ingenuity which makes this service possible, yet it is all very simple—the opening of any faucet releases the gas to the main burners in the heater. The main burners are in turn ignited by a small pilot light which is kept constantly lighted. The water continues to flow hot until the faucet is closed, when the gas is automatically shut off in the heater.

You are cordially invited to call and see one in operation.

CONSTRUCTIVE CAUTION.

The Constitution publishes elsewhere today, from its Washington correspondent, a clear-cut and candid analysis of the status in the national capital as regards legislation directed against so-called "interlocking directorates" as well as other features of trust legislation.

The obvious deduction from the dispatch is that all parties in congress, and particularly the democrats who will be charged with responsibility, are disturbed over the possibility that measures aimed in good faith at the undoubtedly undesirable features of the interlocking directorate may hit also the principle of legitimate business in every state and territory.

Leaders are asking: "How shall we separate the sheep from the goats? How curb the abuses shown by the Pujo probe to exist in New York without threatening the vitals of business elsewhere in the country?"

It is not strange that under this disquieting situation there should be even debate of shelving this precarious issue for the present.

One man may be director for a railroad and also for a bank, and the two institutions might, conceivably, sustain financial or business relations. But that fact does not argue the man a potential crook, or mean that he will, under the purview of the restraining law, seek to throttle competition or be guilty of lawless practices.

Indeed, if men who are joint directors in concerns whose affairs may remotely overlap are put under the ban of the law, it is conceivable that the business administrative boards of the country will be gutted; the representative type of citizen be barred from what is essentially a public service and disfranchised of his ordinary rights as an American citizen.

No sane law contemplates this havoc, of course. But the probability of its development as an unexpected by-product is disturbing, to put it mildly. And that is not to mention the contingency that the known good now accomplished by the Sherman law might be wholly nullified by confusing, conflicting and vague additions.

The suggestion that leaders are debating the wisdom of postponing action on the interlocking directorate situation may, after all, show the way out of a delicate crisis. The country has been treated to two capital legislative operations, those on the tariff and the currency system. It has as yet had no adequate opportunity to recover from the effect of either. To burden it with a third and doubtful experiment might be dangerous. To defer that experiment until business shall have a breathing spell free of eternal uncertainty may be the part of prudence from the political no less than from the patriotic standpoint. For there is no doubt that the party can safely stand pat before the country on the tariff and the currency. Later, if further drastic legislation is needed, there will be nothing to prevent it. In the meantime, business will have resumed its normal condition.

It is encouraging that the president and congress are fully awake to the situation. The demand is, emphatically, for constructive caution.

AN APPLE CONVENTION.

If the apple possibilities of north Georgia are not duly heralded to the country it will not be the fault of the Cornelia and Georgia State Chambers of Commerce. As reported recently in The Constitution, the Cornelia body has asked the co-operation of the Georgia chamber in a monster apple convention, to be held in Cornelia March 28. President C. J. Haden, of the state chamber, promised the delegation, which was headed by William Eberhardt, every help in his power. Such nobles as Henry R. Howard, president of the National Apple association; R. C. Berckmans, former president of the State Horticultural society, and every official in Georgia having remotely or nearly to do with horticulture or agriculture will be present. There will be a flotilla of autos, and they will convey guests to every part of Habersham and adjoining counties offering interest in the apple line.

In other words, the local and state boards are to unite in a love-feast which shall celebrate the glories and sing the possibilities of the Georgia apple, not for the Habersham territory alone, but as well for the entire Blue Ridge region.

The subject is an inspiring one. The cohes, nooks and hills of north Georgia offer territory naturally adapted to develop a tremendous apple industry. The altitude, the precipitation, the soil and other factors are just right. The process of demonstration has gone from the academic to the concrete. Three years ago Rabun county apples won a first prize at the National Apple show, in Spokane, at the heart of the famous Pacific apple orchards. Recently, products from the same locality carried off blue ribbons at a national show in New York city.

Blue Ridge Georgia can produce apples not alone enough to feed the state, but to create a big export margin. Those that come down from that region sell like hot cakes at high prices. Apple growing is not so precarious, nor so much a matter of speculation, as peach cultivation. The element of refrigeration does not enter, the vicissitudes of weather are minimized.

These and other facts will be demonstrated at the Cornelia convention, March 28. Several fortunes in growing apples are awaiting the capitalist and the small farmer in the Blue Ridge belt.

LETTERS WITH PACKAGES.

The parcel post adds another chapter to its brief, but phenomenal, history with the signing of an order by Postmaster General Burleson which permits the sending of a letter with a parcel. The letter must, of course, carry its own postage and be addressed to the same party receiving the parcel. When that condition is fulfilled, the letter may be attached to the parcel and, therefore, assured of delivery with it.

The improvement here recorded is bound to further popularize the parcel post. Heretofore, this branch of the postal department has been forced to progress against the handicap of the regulation which forbade written matter, save the address, to accompany a package. The new order lifts this embargo, and will, undoubtedly, stimulate the popularity of the parcel post, as it will the revenues of the government.

It is doubtful if in any country there has been witnessed the remarkable degree of evolution visible in the growth of the parcel post in America. That activity of the post-office department has been in operation for a period of a trifle under fifteen months. And today the parcel post is a part of the life of every rural community, as it is of the equipment of most of the mail shippers of the city.

If the growth of the past is a prophecy of the future, the forecast is safe that within the next five years the parcel post will be proved not only as a tremendous agent for developing the rural districts, but equally for increasing by a large numeral the revenues of the government.

COMMON-PREFERRED SENSE.

Probate of the will of George Westinghouse, inventor of the air brake and other revolutionary devices, discloses his fortune as being about $35,000,000.

Westinghouse and Edison stand out as types that may be studied with profit by the young inventor. You can hear plenty of tales, tolerably well authenticated, too, about the inventor being robbed of the proceeds of his work. There are relatively few accounts of the inventor, or at least the inventor of note in this country, who reaped the material reward for his labors. Westinghouse and Edison are two exceptions, not solitary, but trending in that direction.

The explanation of the financial success of these men is found in one fact—they knew the game of business almost as well as the game of inventing. Sometimes, indeed in the case of Edison very often, they had to fight long, hard and costly battles for their rights. But they generally won out in the long run, and that in spite of the handicap of our deplorably unjust and antiquated patent laws.

Our age is, necessarily, one of specialism, and it is not to be expected that the man with the creative turn shall have also the commercial knack. But the lives of Westinghouse and Edison, the one leaving a huge fortune and the other still adding to it, is a reminder of the advantage of mixing a little hard common sense with the sheerly intellectual. And the lesson need not be without attention in walks of life other than those occupied by the inventor.

A Song of the Race.

The race we're a-runnin' is but for a day.
But the old world's all right—I'm a-wantin' to say!
Every blest minute I'm glad that I'm in it; I take up my burdens an' whistle away!

Sorrow comes sighin'—skies gettin' gray.
But the world's the all right one—I'm a-wantin' to say!
For the joy—just of livin' I offer thanksgivin', So I take up my burdens and sing on the way!

Life a Spring Poem.
Here is the way Folger McKinney views it:
"Ah, wouldn't it be beautiful to stand at some one's door,
And hear the bluebirds in the hearts of all the rich and poor.
It's all the work I'm askin' If the Master wants it done,
Just makin' life a poem of spring For every single one."

Wayide Philosophy.
Baxter Smith has these paragraphs in The Dalton Citizen:
"The reason I have so much faith in myself is because I have so much faith in the whiteness of my mother's soul."

"Play with the fire if you want to; but when you get burned, don't set up a howl, and try to pack the blame on somebody else."
"Love laughs at locksmiths all right, but hasn't even a dry grin coming when the meal barrel is empty, the baby barefooted and not a dollar in sight."

These men serve on joint or interlocking directorates for no sinister purpose of standard, to the detriment of the public or to the benefit of the private.

As a simple matter of community service, they serve to represent substantial interest of stockholders, small investors, widows, etc., as well as legitimate business interests.

If the straight technical line was drawn and the interlocking directorate was either abolished, or its maintenance made obscure and devious, what would happen?

The effect would be to drive from valuable public service, to disfranchise them from the rights and privileges of the average citizens, thousands of the highest type of business men in the country. Chambers of commerce the country over are protesting against this.

Perhaps Worse.
Another menacing possibility is that the Sherman anti-trust law may either be emasculated or wholly destroyed by hazy or indefinite or dangerous additions.

As it now is, the government can get action through prosecutions under the law. The lawyers in congress are asking if the law is cluttered with numerous new clauses if the latter will not turn out loopholes for the escape of that identical class of undesirable business practice against which the law has thus far proved so effective.

Will It Stand Pat?
The amended interlocking directorate bill is vastly milder than its stern predecessor. But it still is full of ambiguities and, some members think, danger. It leaves too much up in the air, and too much to the broad discretion of the courts. Chairman Henry D. Clayton, of the house judiciary committee, has told your representative that it is the desire of the committee to exempt legitimate business from the drastic operation of the law. But he, as well as others, is uncertain as to how this is to be accomplished in a constitutional manner.

All these perplexing considerations have given rise to distinct sentiment in some quarters, that it is best to leave this dangerous field alone for the present. Adoption of this course would enable the party to go before the country with a splendidly constructive and attack-proof program of the currency and tariff and good roads laws.

objections be deemed advisable to enact legislation clarifying the corporation situation, steps could then be taken at a time when the country has had opportunity to recover from previous fundamental legislation.

Whether this is the prevailing sentiment the next few days will disclose. In the meantime, it is certain that from President Wilson on down the tendency is to speed down rather than speed up legislative machine as it touches basic legislation.

Threat-Laden Issue of Interlocking Directorates Makes Congress Cautious

By John Corrigan, Jr.
Washington, March 22.—(Special).—Both branches and all political parties in congress are more perturbed over the anti-trust and interlocking directorate legislation now pending than over the Mexican situation or, indeed, any single issue of national importance that has developed since the inauguration of Wilson. All tendency to treat or approach the subject lightly or with impulse has given way to the sober realization that under any conditions and with the most cautious intention it is laden with possible threat to the business of the country. From President Wilson on down the injunction is "Go slow." So chary are the democrats of trading on the toes of the public or business sentiment of the country, that it would not be really surprising if tinkering with the question went over until next fall, the party standing pat before the voters on the new tariff and currency laws and the good roads bill, which seems sure of enactment.

The Sheep and Goats.
The delicate problem confronting congress is just this:
"How are we going to frame a law that will reach the undoubted menace of the interlocking directorate in high places and when it is perverted, without at the same time threatening legitimate use of the interlocking directorate system upon which constructive business in many parts of the nation is built?"

There is no doubt, of course, that the Pujo probe demonstrated that when interlocking directorates are carried to an extreme, and among the high financiers of New York, it produces conditions that are vicious and undesirable. These it is the desire of congress to curb.

Honest Business.
But if indiscriminate legislation against the interlocking directorate is enacted, what becomes of legitimate business throughout the country outside of New York?

Every American state contains scores or hundreds of industrial and corporate or commercial enterprises, the boards of directors of which are composed of men who are also on the directorates of other corporations that, theoretically, might have business dealings with them. In other words, the same man may be a director in a bank and a director in a railroad which might, conceivably, be a customer of that bank.

This sort of thing is common and it is easily understood. It takes brains to direct big enterprises. There is not a surplus of that variety of brains in this country. In innumerable communities, the same men may serve on the directorates of several corporations from sheer necessity, since the country simply does not produce high-calibered brains or wealth in sufficient quantities to furnish directors for all concerns without, at many points, overlapping.

What Might Happen.
These men serve on joint or interlocking directorates for no sinister purpose of standard, to the detriment of the public or to the benefit of the private.

As a simple matter of community service, they serve to represent substantial interest of stockholders, small investors, widows, etc., as well as legitimate business interests.

Better Lighting for the Eads Bridge, St. Louis.
(From The Electrical World.)
The famous Eads bridge across the Mississippi river, connecting St. Louis, Mo., and East St. Louis, Ill., is now brilliantly lighted by inverted magnetic arc lamps. On the main end of the structure lamps have been placed on iron brackets attached to the trolley poles of the electric railway company operating on the bridge. Fifty lamps in all are used.

COBB COMMITTEE FILES MAY 8
AS DATE OF COUNTY PRIMARY
Marietta, Ga., March 22.—(Special).—The Cobb county executive committee met at 10 o'clock Saturday morning and fixed May 8 as the date for primary. Joseph M. Bishop was elected chairman of the committee and A. W. Florence secretary.

There are six candidates for treasurer announced, viz: E. M. Dyer, Monte Shaw, Sam Gatlin, John W. Brown, Loyd Reed and H. L. Barfield. George Owen is being opposed for receiver by H. Clay Lassiter, James W. Gaines and Homer Fair. James Dobbs has as his opponent A. H. Talley for clerk of the court. Sheriff Swanson and Tax Collector Lecroy have no opposition.

Colonel W. R. Power, Thomas N. Camp, Joe Abbott, B. N. Stanley and others are thinking of being in the race for the legislature.

HALL COUNTY PRIMARY
WILL COULD CANDIDATES $180
Gainesville, Ga., March 22.—(Special).—The election for county officers, which is called for April 10, will cost the candidates about $180 this year, an assessment of about $11 each being put upon the aspirants.

The following is the standing of the ticket today, with the slightest possibility of one or two other candidates announcing later: For judge of the city court, W. S. Pickrell, A. C. Wheeler; for solicitor of the city court, Hammond Johnson, Ed Quillian; for sheriff, J. M. Long, E. A. Spencer; for clerk, R. W. Smith; for county treasurer, George Latham, Reed A. Latham, Thomas W. West; for tax collector, W. E. Buffington, L. B. Cato, J. D. Loke, W. D. (Bill) Whelchel; for tax collector, Amos E. Fuller, John L. Barrett.

DEKALB POLITICAL SITUATION
FAST GROWING COMPLICATED
Decatur, Ga., March 22.—(Special).—The political situation in DeKalb county is growing somewhat complicated as the date for the election approaches. The primary will be held on March 23, and there are already seventeen candidates in the field for the various offices.

The closest race will probably be that for county commissioner. This office pays $1,500 per year, and the candidates are ready to fight for it. R. J. Freeman, the present commissioner, is running for re-election, and is opposed by C. A. Morris, former sheriff, and Charles O. Smith, a well-known dairyman.

B. F. Burgess, the present county clerk, is opposed by W. H. Hollingsworth, of Lithonia. Sheriff J. A. McCurdy has no opposition, and so far none has developed against Tax Receiver C. E. Gibbs.

There are six candidates for treasurer. D. C. Thompson wants to be re-elected, and the other candidates are: J. E. Bodenhamer, Rev. Charles L. Pattillo, of Decatur; W. F. Zastillo, of East Atlanta; Dr. C. S. Brannon, of Clarkston; and T. J. Lowe, of Lithonia.

J. E. Forrester, tax collector, is being actively opposed by A. S. Allen, the present tax supervisor.

The executive committee, of which P. F. Callahan, of Decatur, is chairman, will meet on March 28.

THE OLD-FASHIONED BACK YARD AND ITS USE
Editor Constitution: Oh, for the old-fashioned back yard for our children to play in that they might be kept off of the streets! How many mothers and fathers are saying just this to themselves every day, and often to others, when they are met by the reply: "Well, if you have a back yard the children will not play in it." Now, most of our back yards are not large enough to interest a chicken, much less a child. They are miserable little pens, when the children are miserably bored, when the mother is sover, merely eye-sores, without excuse for being.

Throw all the back yards together, turning them into parks, courts, plazas, playgrounds, places of pleasure and beauty, public enough to be helpful, private enough to be restful; away from most of the dust, yet close enough to be within call of mother. Here all the neighborhood children would play, and the money to go to still further improvements.

Away with the back fence! What good are they anyhow? Let Atlanta, the progressive, begin the good work, and in ten years in the cities of America the hideous objects of the back fence will be banished, and cut up the children's natural playground into a series of ugly, useless little pens. If we agitate this move, or strive forward, of course there will be a thousand objections. Well, for every objection there is an excellent answer ready. I called in the neighborhood children today and asked them how they liked the plan. You should have heard the shout. They have long felt the need, though they did not know how to express it. Let Atlanta be the first to give to her children these safe out-of-door child gardens, and she will have a thousand followers in less than one year.

H. R. WOOD.

Your Majesty.
By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS.
The only difference between a King and anybody else is that he Rules. It doesn't matter how many he rules, if he rules at all, he's King.

If you are not a King, it's because you don't Rule. That's a wise saying, that "He who rules his own life is greater than he who takes a city." Don't you see? We hear a lot about "the Majesty of the Law." There isn't anything or any one so majestic as the man who knows HE is King. YOUR Majesty! Do you grasp the meaning?

All right—Your Majesty. Better your work with zest and zeal. Prove your personal Leadership. And if you are going to be a King at all, be a BIG one—Your Majesty!

No man knows his Limitations—few of us have ever accomplished a fifth of what we are capable of. Kings alone have reached the Summit. And No Man is a REAL King who has not pushed back his Mental Horizon to its utmost limits—Your Majesty.

Fascination of Railroad.
Men cannot be long in touch with the transportation industry without realizing that, despite the increasing burden and complex problems constantly demanding attention, railroading has a fascination for those engaged in it which never seems to diminish. This is peculiarly true in the electric railway field, where problems are ever-changing in character and where the progress of electrical engineering, and of operation, the broad yet close relations with the great public and the mechanical aspects of the industry demand the most careful analytical study. The "call of the rail" is as real a challenge to men of red blood and keen minds as the sustained impulse to employ one's talents in pioneer work on the fast-disappearing frontier of civilization. Once it is heard, it stays for a lifetime, and a sympathetic interest in railroad problems is never lost.

FARM PRODUCTS DIRECT
TO DOOR OF CONSUMERBy Parcel Post Postmaster
General Burleson Will Cut Living Cost.

Washington, March 22.—Preliminary steps were taken by the postoffice department today to perfect its plan for reducing the cost of living by having the parcel post carry farm products direct to the door of the consumer. Ten cities were selected to begin the work of establishing direct connection between producer and consumer. Postmaster General Burleson already having issued an order permitting the use of crates and boxes for butter, eggs, poultry, vegetables and fruit shipped by parcel post.

Orders today went to the postmasters at Boston, Atlanta, St. Louis, San Francisco, Baltimore, Detroit, La Crosse, Wis., Lynn, Mass.; Rock Island, Ill., and Washington, directing them "to receive the names of persons who are willing to supply farm produce in retail quantities by parcel post, and to have the names of these persons distributed among town and city patrons."

In Touch With Farmer.
"By the use of the lists," said First Assistant Postmaster General Rogers today, "the city consumer can get in touch with a farmer who will fill his weekly orders for farm produce. The consumer will receive the product fresh from the country, and the personal relationship established no doubt will tend to improve the quality. The farmer will be relieved of carrying his produce to market, as the rural carrier will make daily collections at the farmer's door and deliver the shipments to city consumers."

The point has been raised that difficulty will be experienced in the return of hampers and other containers. This problem, however, is being met by the use of the returnable hamper, which may be used for a number of years, and which may include an additional charge to be credited to the consumer on the return of the hamper by parcel post.

The One Thing Necessary.
The postmaster general is convinced that this plan is the one thing necessary to "bring the farmer and the city consumer into closer touch, and to enable the city consumer to enjoy the potential benefits of the parcel post. No one ever has questioned the wisdom of carrying the cost of living by establishing direct relations between the ultimate consumer and the original producer. A complete means for such direct transportation was provided for the first time by the establishment of the domestic parcel post, but there has been lacking the means by which the individual producer could get in touch with the individual consumer."

The postmaster general's plan is designed to provide this agency for the most economical distribution of those products which are consigned in the form and condition in which they are produced.

FATE OF THE NEW HAVEN
RESTS WITH ITS OWNERS

Washington, March 22.—With the danger of an anti-trust suit out of the way, the next steps in the untangling of the New Haven railroad system must be taken by the New Haven directors, its thousands of stockholders throughout New England and by the Massachusetts legislature. Department of justice officials have agreed to a peaceful dissolution, and the feeling here is that the salvation of the road is in the hands of its directors and stockholders.

The New Haven board is expected to meet in New York Thursday, and that time the agreement between the advisers of the road and the department, announced last night, will be considered. Chairman Elliott is confident his directors will approve the action taken here by himself and counsel, and with their approval he believes the agreement can be submitted to the stockholders and ratified within a month.

Action by Massachusetts will be necessary before trustees named in the agreement to take over the Boston and Maine stock of the New Haven can begin the work of reorganizing the stock, legislation removing the lien which that commonwealth has over the stock will be necessary before the plan is worked out.

The final step in the dissolution will be taken in the dissolution of the New Haven stockholders and the state of Massachusetts have acted, when lawyers for the government and the railroad will appear before the United States district court and ask for an agreed decree embodying the terms of the agreement announced here.

Pending submission of the plan to stockholders and action in Massachusetts, department attorneys probably will devote some attention to the preparation of this decree. It probably will not be completed for several weeks, and will not be finally approved by both sides until the necessary legislation has been signed by Governor Walsh.

Raising Cattle in McDuffie.
Thomson, Ga., March 22.—(Special.)—McDuffie county is forging ahead in the cattle-raising industry, as is evidenced by the sale of a large number of home-raised steers by J. H. Kendrick, of North McDuffie. They were bought by J. F. Watney and shipped to other markets. There were thirty head in all, being in excellent condition. It is said that Mr. Kendrick has over fifty calves on his farm that will be ready for market next year.

COVINGTON MAIN KILLS
HIS WIFE BY ACCIDENTGun Is Fired as Bun Johnson
Rushes to Kill Hawk.

Covington, Ga., March 22.—(Special.)—While passing through the kitchen of his home at dawn this morning on his way to slay a hawk, which had pounced down upon a brood of chickens, Bun Johnson, a farmer living five miles from this place, accidentally killed his pretty young wife, when the gun was unaccountably discharged in his hands.

Shot instantly. A coroner's inquest was held a few hours later. Following Johnson's version of the tragedy, he was acquitted by a verdict of accidental death.

The entire left side of the dead woman was mangled by the lead of buckshot. She was standing with her back to the doorway, through which she was being pursued, when the gun accidentally exploded. She was 25 years old, and leaves one child.

WORLDLINGS USING
BIBLE, SAYS SHULER, FOR SELFISH ENDS

Rev. Allen C. Shuler, of the East Side Tabernacle, in a sermon last night, declared that the light and liberty of the Gospel is being used today by worldlings for purposes that have left God out.

"Why, the United States," said the pastor, "can not be put down as a Christian nation. Daniel Webster, it is said, tried to prove that proposition and failed to acknowledge his failure."

"For every dollar we give to send the Gospel to the world, we spend more than a hundred for liquor, and more than a hundred for gambling, and more than a hundred for the things of the world, and we give in a whole year to preach the Gospel to the lost. God is being forgotten more and more while men live under the blessed influence of this day of grace."

Note the astounding fact that after 2,000 years of preaching the number of evangelized Christians is but 100,000,000. Unfaithfulness, lack of consecration and separation, is the curse of modern Christianity, and has been from the beginning. We need a ministry of 'Come ye out from among them,' as we need nothing else in the church today."

SPALDING TO UNDERTAKE CULTIVATION OF BAMBOO

Griffin, Ga., March 22.—(Special.)—The discovery that bamboo will grow in Spalding county may lead to the establishing of a new industry here. The Griffin-Spalding County Board of Agriculture is behind the project, and an effort will be made to have the growers of this plant enter into competition with the supply imported from Japan.

Some months ago Mrs. G. J. DeVette planted some bamboo roots for ornamental purposes. Only very ordinary care was given the plants, but in a short while they have grown to large size and appear perfectly adapted to this section.

Attention has been called to the fact that American manufacturers are yearly importing large quantities of bamboo canes from Japan for broom handles, and paying a good price for them. The Griffin-Spalding County Board is considering the proposition seriously. The Griffin-Spalding County Board of Agriculture is behind the project, and an effort will be made to have the growers of this plant enter into competition with the supply imported from Japan.

SPRING TEMPERATURES TO RETURN THIS WEEK

Washington, March 22.—A gradual return this week to normal spring temperatures, with generally fair skies, was predicted by the weather bureau tonight for all parts of the country east of the Rocky mountains.

There will be a frost in the first part of the week, however, said the bulletin, "in the east and south Atlantic states, and in the north Atlantic states. There is nothing to indicate marked storm activity over the country. A decided decrease in intensity will appear in the northwest Wednesday or Thursday, cross the middle west about Friday and the eastern states near the end of the week; this disturbance will be attended by local areas of precipitation, and will be followed by a change to cooler weather in the northern states."

MORNING AND EVENING
PROCTOR'S SUBJECTS

"The Circle of the Day" was the subject of two companion sermons preached by Dr. H. H. Proctor at the First Congregational church, colored—one at the morning and the other at the evening hour yesterday—distinguished visitors being present from the east at the morning service.

"The morning," said the preacher at the morning hour, "has spiritual gold in its mouth, and should be a time for spiritual industry. As the ancient priest set the sacrifice in order daily, so each one should order his prayer of thanksgiving for protection, rest and restoration, supplemented by his petition for wisdom, guidance and strength for the day."

"The evening," said the preacher, "is the time for the soul to rest. It is the mother of the day, and the way a man spends his evening will determine what he is to be eventually. Clearly the divine purpose of the evening is to make a man stronger, physically, brighter mentally, and spiritually for the following day."

False Rumor Accused
Teacher of Killing
Young Pupil in Well

Thomasville, Ga., March 22.—(Special.)—As an example of how far an utterly unfounded rumor may reach, and the proportions to which it may grow, Superintendent of Schools, J. M. Thomas county schools, thinks he has recently had an experience which is almost the limit.

The story in question was to the effect that one of the most valued and reliable of the young women teachers in the county had, in the attempt to punish a pupil, pushed him into the well at the schoolhouse. The rumor spread rapidly, and the teacher in question, Miss M. S. Thomas, was called to the schoolhouse and told that she had been accused of the crime.

She was told that she had been accused of the crime, and she was told that she had been accused of the crime. She was told that she had been accused of the crime, and she was told that she had been accused of the crime.

OUTRAGES BY BRIGANDS
INCREASING IN CHINA

Peking, March 22.—Outrages by brigands in central China are assuming alarming proportions. Several bands associated with the notorious outlaw, White Wolf, are ravaging various parts of the country, ruthlessly murdering and robbing the people and burning property.

The latest bandit exploit was the massacre of 300 townsfolk who resisted their entrance into a small town near the province of Hupei. Most of the town was burned and the population ruined financially. On the occasion of the recent sacking of Kingtongwan, province of Honan, the local troops made no effort to resist the brigands. The troops were commanded by a general, formerly a noted brigand chief, and the government is unable to deal with the situation and there is every prospect of further development of the brigandage.

Mr. Wier appeals to all classes for support, and if elected will serve all classes and sections with such fairness as to at all times reflect credit and honor on himself and that large element of the people who are backing his race with laudable ambition, on their part, to participate in the government of the city and county. His campaign is in no sense personally selfish, but is patriotic and progressive. The hundreds of devoted men who are canvassing the county and who will work at the polls are doing so freely out of loyalty. No campaign contributions will be solicited or accepted. All expenses will be met by Mr. Wier and the League. See platform in Journal of Labor.

SYLVIA PANKHURST
BORNE ON STRETCHERBut She Was Unable to Enter
Westminster Abbey—Held Services Outside.

London, March 22.—Sylvia Pankhurst, carried on a stretcher and surrounded by about 1,000 members of her East End People's army, attempted to attend this evening's service in Westminster abbey, but was unable to gain admission, as every seat had been taken, in view of the fact that last Sunday she announced her intention to be present tonight. The militant suffragette and her followers held an open air meeting in the street.

The vanguard of the East End contingent was led by Church of England clergyman, the Rev. Edmund Willis. Clothed in full vestments he opened the street meeting with prayer, and after the singing of "Onward, Christian Soldiers," by the members of the "army," preached a short sermon.

Miss Pankhurst delivered an address exhorting her followers to make England "a real Christian country, so that Westminster abbey will become a place for the poor as well as for the rich." After the meeting she was removed in an ambulance.

The demonstration was remarkable for the small number of police present, and for the religious atmosphere surrounding it. Only occasionally were speakers interrupted by cheering and calls for "social revolution."

VAN HISE SEES HARM
IN TRUST DISSOLUTION

St. Paul, March 22.—The government's trust dissolution program is raising the specter of lowering the prices of commodities affected, according to a statement last night by Dr. Charles R. Hise, president of the University of Wisconsin, in an address to the St. Paul Association of Commerce.

Dr. Van Hise declared the operation of the Sherman law was resulting in a wide difference in wage rates in various parts of the country. His report pointed out, in gradually lessening, although there is still considerable variance.

JOHN REED
IN MEXICO

Word Pictures of War by an American Kipling

Hot from the front has come John Reed's first "story" of Mexico. By holding our presses we just had time to catch the April number now on the news-stands. It's literature. What Stephen Crane and Richard Harding Davis did for the Spanish-American War in 1898, John Reed, 26 years old, has done for Mexico. You see that beautiful, blood-drenched country with freshly dug graves crowding the public roads. You see glorious, drunken nights of revelry where mirth is turned to tragedy by jealousy fired with too generous gulps of sotol—for even in war sparkling eyes and red lips sway the passions of men. You see General Urbina, surrounded by his gaily decked fighters, traveling with his mother and his mistress. And for the first time you will understand this monstrous, paradoxical struggle wagging at our very doorstep. Yes, Reed's story is literature.

WHIFFS

The Right Hunch.

WE HAVE been tipped off confidentially by a newspaper friend in the big show that our hunch about Blanton returning to the Crackers is a good one. This friend has seen the Browns in training. He states that both Wallace and Lavan have been showing better form than Blanton to date, and Manager Branch Hickey is inclined to keep them in preference to Blanton.

Great Infield.

BISLAND's return to the Crackers would give the Crackers an infield that will compare favorably with any in the league. Working with McConnell at the keystone, the Crackers would have a duo there that would be like chained lightning, and the Crackers will make a strong bid for the double play honors with them on the job.

At Hot Corner.

BISLAND's return would also complicate matters in that fight for the hot corner berth, adding Holland, also. Schwind to the contestants now battling there, Lynch and Manush. It would develop a scrap for the place that could hardly be decided until the opening game of the season. The man that lands would round out a well field.

Some Betting Order.

THE BATTING order of the Crackers would also be more formidable, shaping up about as follows: McConnell, second base; Blanton, shortstop; Welch, catcher; Holland, first base; Flanagan, right field; Eble, left field; then the third baseman, catcher and pitcher. Considerable twisting order for an opposing twelfth to face, about as formidable as the one last season.

Looks Better.

JOE DUNN is catching the best game of his career this spring. The veteran receiver is like a new man. He has never thrown to bases any better than he is throwing right now. He also seems to have picked up in his hitting. In touching a runner at the plate and catching him, he has shown improvement in the other departments. Joe is now playing like a man who is his best. We hope so, for no harder worker or better fellow personally has appeared on a local club. He gives his best at all times.

Go Nine Innings.

IT WILL NOT be long now until Smith starts sending his pitchers the entire route in the practice games. He is figuring on pitching Frank Brown in the New York International tomorrow and sending him just as far as Frank feels he is able to go. He will go the entire route if his arm can stand the strain and the opposition does not take too kindly to his line.

Looks Like Regular.

THIS BROWNING person is going to create considerable argument before acknowledging that any of the other pitching candidates have more claim to a regular berth than he. This boy looks like a regular pitcher and he appears to have something on that old ball all the time. The man that is blowing out for a regular place will certainly have to show some class.

First Setback.

JOHN BULL has received his first setback since 1911. Jay Gould annexing the racquet, championship from George Covey. This is the first of several setbacks that he is likely to receive this year.

Gives Line-Up.

FRANK CHANCE announces that his New York Yankees will play the Crackers at Ponce de Leon Thursday, will arrive here that afternoon, 1:30 o'clock. The regular line-up for the Yankees is as follows: Maisei, third base; Jackson, second base; Holland, left field; Williams, first base; Holden, center field; Gilhooley, right field; Peckinpaugh, shortstop; Sweeney, catcher; Reynolds, catcher; Cole, Caldwell, Warhop, Fisher or Keating, pitcher.

Players Sent Up.

STATE LEAGUE fans will be interested not only in their pennant race during the coming campaign, but in the play that the fans manifest in the league last season. There are eight former state league twirlers now trying out with Atlanta, two with the Connecticut league, one in the American association and one in the National league.

To Increase Size.

THE SUCCESSFUL culmination of the 1914 playing season and that interest that the fans manifest in the league will have everything to do with the project of enlarging the State League to 1915. Fitzgerald and Doolin have applied for places in the league and will be given them if the 1914 season warrants the enlarging the league to eight clubs.

Park Department Teams
Perfect an Organization
at Tuesday's Meeting

The Park Department league, the latest of the amateur baseball leagues to be organized in Atlanta, will perfect their organization at a meeting to be held in the office of General Manager of Parks Dan Carey tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. Southern Shops, Oakland City, Jonathans, Jones Avenue and Grant Park, have entered the league. Any other teams desiring to enter are requested to have representatives at the meeting.

Dan Carey, City Clerk Walter Taylor and the city hall reporters of the three Atlanta papers are the committee that is in charge of the affairs of the league.

A pennant will be awarded to the champions, and trophies to the best batter, best pitcher and best runner. A post season series will be arranged with the Bank Department League of Macon.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LEAGUE
HOLDS MEETING TONIGHT

The Sunday School league will hold a meeting tonight at 8 o'clock at Carnegie library. The league will be divided into two sections this year. The Sunday School and the Barons. All teams are urged to have a representative at the meeting.

Resume Exhibition Games Today

Atlanta Medical College
To Play Crackers Today;
Then Newark, Then Yanks

By Dick Jemison.

The Crackers will resume their exhibition series of games today at Ponce de Leon and, with the exception of two Sundays, there will be a game every day from the Saturday before the season opens.

The Atlanta Medical College will be the opponents of the Crackers this afternoon. The game will start promptly at 3 o'clock. The admission fee will be as usual—25 cents.

The Medicos have one of the strongest teams in the south outside of an organized league. On their roster are several stars—players who started with their college teams or on some smaller league teams. They expect to give the Crackers a close run.

Newark Next.

The spring championship of the Southern International League will be settled on Tuesday and Wednesday, when the Newark International comes here for two games.

The Crackers won the pennant in the Southern league last season, and the Indians won it in the International league. The series here will, therefore, be in the nature of a play-off.

The two pennant winners are Billy Smith-Harry, of Newark, and Billy Welch, of Atlanta. The Crackers will have to win one another with about the same number of new men, who will have to play in the bottom spot to pieces by drafts, sales and recalls.

Harry Swacina, former Mobile first-sacker, and Helma Zimmermann, who played center field for a while for the Crackers, will be the new additions. The rest of the Newark team will probably be new to Atlanta fans. The games promise to be interesting ones.

Yanks Thursday.

Frank Chance, the peerless leader, who has appeared in Atlanta in the spring before, but at the head of the famous Cub machine, will lead his New York Yankees to the Crackers on Thursday in one game.

The appearance of the Yankees here will be a big thing for the Crackers, principally through the popularity of Chance and the desire of local fandom to see just what kind of a club he is now leading and judge for themselves his chances of climbing out of the last division.

Chance has several very promising youngsters with his club, which he has been found to build from the bottom up. He has a scattering of veterans, but he has weeded out most of the dead wood.

Ed Sweeney, former Cracker catcher; Jack Warhop, Harry Wolter and Ray Caldwell have all appeared here before as members of the Yankees, and will need no introduction.

The speedy little third baseman, Gilhooley, the young out-fielder, Cook, Williams, Gossett and Peckinpaugh will all be introduced to local fandom for the first time.

Braves on Friday.

George Stallings, of Haddock's, Ga., manager of the Boston Braves, will lead that team against the Crackers on Friday and Saturday in a series of two games.

The Braves are an interesting division.

GILMORE TO ATTEND

Chicago, March 22.—President James A. Gilmore and Secretary Lloyd Rickart left today for Baltimore to attend the scheduled meeting of the Federal league. Rickart took with him copies of the first draft of the schedule.

The tentative opening day program is for Chicago to open at St. Louis, Indianapolis at Kansas City, Brooklyn at Pittsburgh and Buffalo at Baltimore. Lloyd Rickart, secretary of the league, has drafted an arrangement for the season, but it is thought many changes will be made to avoid conflict with the American association schedule.

DAHLEN REMEMBERED
BY THE BROOKLYN BOYS

Augusta, Ga., March 22.—When Bill Dahlen, former manager of the Brooklyn club, came here last night, he thought he was merely joining the club to see the game. He was invited to a o'clock he was invited into the hotel dining room to get a little lunch. The lunch, it was found when he got on the inside, consisted of an elaborate banquet, the feature of which was the presentation to Dahlen of the most magnificent nine-piece solid silver service ever seen in Augusta. It was a token of esteem, as indicated by the engraving on the 2-inch tray "From the 1913 Brooklyn baseball players."

Dahlen was taken entirely unaware. The presentation was made by Jake Daubert. The entire Brooklyn and Newark teams, the two presidents, Manager Robinson and visiting and local newspaper men were guests at the banquet.

NEW FRANK TRIAL URGED BY PASTOR

Give Him Chance to Prove Himself Not Guilty of Horrible Crime, Dr. Fred Line Tells Congregation.

Declaring that the friends of Leo Frank, condemned to die for the murder of Mary Phagan, are asking simply that he be given a chance to prove himself not guilty, Dr. Fred A. Line, pastor of the Universalist church, yesterday made a plea to his congregation for another hearing for the prisoner.

His sermon in part is as follows:

"The friends of justice are not asking you or me to prove Leo Frank's innocence. They are asking simply that he be given a chance to prove himself not guilty. Dr. Fred A. Line, pastor of the Universalist church, yesterday made a plea to his congregation for another hearing for the prisoner."

IF KIDNEYS ARE WEAK TRY BUCHU

Mixed With Juniper Is Old Folks' Recipe for Flushing Kidneys—Stops Backache and Uric Acid.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region, it generally means your kidneys are weak. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells, your stomach sour, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To relieve this distressing condition at once get from your pharmacist a 15-oz. bottle of Stuart's Buchu and Juniper Compound. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water after meals. Stop eating sweets or sugar. In a few days your kidneys will then act fine and natural. A well known authority says this is the best treatment. Stuart's Buchu and Juniper Compound acts directly on the kidneys, through the blood. It keeps the blood healthy. It strengthens the neck of the bladder. It regulates the kidneys and does away with backache and all disagreeable symptoms. If discouraged with other medicines, buy a 15-oz. bottle of your druggist today.

famous for its splendid public schools, and for the Donald Fraser High School and Agnes Scott College.

Decatur is now provided with 18 miles of modern sidewalks, an up-to-date water and sewerage system, electric lights, 7 miles of macadam streets, and work will soon begin upon the gas plant, while the telephone service in Decatur is exactly the same as that of Atlanta, the Decatur exchanges of both companies being connected with the Atlanta exchanges.

Two flourishing banks and many substantial business houses make Decatur a Business Center of growing importance.

In DeKalb County are all the county clubs adjacent to Atlanta, such as East Lake, Druid Hills and Brookhaven.

In DeKalb County are such well-known educational institutions as Agnes Scott College, at Decatur, and Oglethorpe University, near Silver Lake.

The Ninth Ward, the fastest-growing ward of Atlanta, is in DeKalb County.

ing you or me to prove Leo Frank's innocence. They are asking simply that he be given a chance to prove himself not guilty. He may or may not be able to establish his innocence, but surely he is entitled to a fair show, to a square deal before the bar of public opinion, even as in the court of justice. The plea for a new trial for Leo Frank is not based upon sentiment. It is based upon justice.

Conditions at Trial.
"What were the conditions obtaining at the time of this trial? A foul murder had been committed. Public indignation was at white heat. The very air was surcharged with passion, unreasoning passion. The mob spirit was in evidence, and it was not within the province or power of court or mortal man to stem the tide which was destined to engulf whatever unfortunate victim might be offered for sacrifice. Mr. Frank happened to be the victim. Unprintable, and without foundation in fact, regarding the nature of the crime were whispered from mouth to mouth. Other stories, wherein but half truths were told, and facts were outrageously misrepresented, were given wide circulation."

"And so the flames of public fury and passion were fed and intensified. From this inflamed and abnormal public came judge and jury and prosecutor and witnesses. To say that they were impervious to the permeating spirit of the mob on street and in courtroom is to say that they were less than men. It is no reflection on the intelligence or the sincerity of judges, jurymen or prosecutor to say that Leo Frank did not, could not, under the prevailing conditions, have a fair trial. Those who sat in judgment over this man were but common mortals like ourselves, human even, as we are human. If they are the honest, sincere, dispassionate men which I believe them to be, they will welcome any move whereby the grave doubt existing in no inconsiderable part of the public mind shall be dissolved."

"An ever increasing number believe most strongly in Mr. Frank's innocence. Some of the greatest psychologists of the nation, with no personal bias either one way or the other, after a careful review of the briefs in the case, express the opinion that in view of the facts it is impossible that Mr. Frank could have committed the crime for which he has been sentenced to hang. William Burns, the greatest detective in the world, says that Frank is no pervert; indicates a belief in his innocence; says that the trail is plain; that he is not guilty of the crime; and that he is innocent. The trial judge himself expressed a doubt as to this man's guilt or innocence. Two judges of the supreme court expressed the opinion that he should be given another trial. A vast amount of new evidence, which has a direct bearing upon this most remarkable case, is daily coming to light. In the face of all this, shall we allow a human being, a brother man, to hang without a fair and impartial trial? Surely the heart and mind and soul answer no."

Georgia on Trial.
"The state of Georgia is on trial, not Leo Frank. The church, the Christian people of this city and state are on trial. The eye of the nation is upon us. Shall we be true to ourselves and to our state and to the ideals of democracy in hearing and heeding the demands of justice? The Outlook, one of the most influential publications in the nation, after investigating this case on its own initiative and reviewing the various phases, declares for a new trial. New York and Chicago papers, editorially, give no less frank and forceful expression to similar convictions."

"Justice demands that truth shall prevail, that the guilty shall be punished, that the innocent shall not suffer, that the great laws of brotherhood and life, which are the laws of God, shall be observed. We do well to remember that a so-called justice is often extremely unjust. We are reminded of the words of the apostle Paul, 'The summary of the law is love.' This admirable maxim is to be found. When it is applied to the case of Leo Frank, it is about to perform its just and unselfish duty. Surely a great Christian civilization must be governed by as high a standard of justice. As long as there is a shadow of doubt as to the guilt of the man, justice is the business of the lovers of justice to lend a hand. Let us recall the words of Jesus in his noble Sermon on the Mount. Therefore, if thou bring thy gift to the altar, and there rememberest that thy brother hath aught against thee, leave there thy gift before the altar, and go thy way; first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift. We cannot, we must not, be indifferent or silent as regards those questions which strike at the very foundations of government and the life of the people."

"A profound thinker says, 'The only thing required then, is to exercise our reason in discrimination as to the various shades of what is right and wrong. Good and evil are often neighbors; our passions confound them; who shall enlighten and direct us? Ourselves when we are calm and undisturbed—be just.' The call is to us, be just. Let us, dear friends, prove our Christianity by our works in shouldering bravely the responsibilities of citizenship, lending our voice and influence to the promotion of that justice which is the foundation of our free institutions, and our stand with those who believe in a common ideal for every man, woman and child, espousing the cause of truth with our lips and lives."

Plea for New Trial.
"I plead for a new trial for Leo Frank in the name of that justice which demands for every man the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness; which recognizes the sacredness of human life and zealously guards its forces; which transcends prejudice, vengeance, malice, hatred; which demands that truth shall prevail, and that all life shall be conserved to ends of human usefulness and divine service. I plead for a new trial as a man who loves men and who desires to see justice done, as a man who believes in men and in the power of divine love to win its victories in human hearts and lives."

"I close with words spoken on a somewhat different occasion by Richard Sheridan at the impeachment of Warren Hastings. 'Justice have now before me, august and pure; the abstruse, which I believe the wisdom of the spirits and the aspirations of men. Where the mind rises, where the heart expands; where the conscience is ever placid and benign—where her favorite attitude is stoop to the unfortunate—to hear their wrongs and to help them to rescue and relieve, to succor and save; majestic from its mercy; venerable from its truth; firm without obduracy; beneficent in each preference; lovely, though in its severity.'"

"Thus saith the Lord, 'Execute ye judgment and righteousness and deliver the oppressed, and do no wrong; do no violence to the stranger, the fatherless nor the widow; neither shed innocent blood in this place.' What doth the Lord require of thee but to do justly and to love mercy and to walk humbly with thy God? and yet justice be done though the heavens fall."

DETECTIVE BURNS GOES TO NEW YORK

I agree with him in most of his card. He is the negro's counsel, and has a right to handle his client's case in any manner he deems fit and proper. I am not antagonistic to Smith nor to Conley, and I'm not going to be to him and I will come to terms at the proper time, and don't worry over that."

William Smith, in a statement following his sensational arrest and published in Saturday's Constitution, declared he felt no personal animosity toward Detective Burns, and that if Burns came to him in a proper spirit, terms could easily be reached. "I have no particular objections to permitting Burns to see Conley," he said. "But I am not going to let Burns run roughshod over me and my client. Conley is as worthy of protection as any prisoner."

"Conley doesn't mind facing Burns. He is more willing to face him than he is to face the state's attorney. They tried to see him before the trial. The only thing I want to be assured of is that the state's attorney, myself, if Burns will agree to be reasonable. We can then reach an agreement."

Luther Rosser, senior counsel for the defense and the first attorney employed by Frank, said that he returns this morning from Gainesville, where he has been fighting a case in the courts of that county.

When Is a Man Drunk?

(From The Washington Post.)
When can a man be called a drunkard? That is the all-absorbing question in the town of Tenafly, N. J. The town council recently created a "board of protectors," and this board took up this world-old question. The board of protectors was composed of twenty citizens were posted to whom alcoholics were sent. The board of protectors was composed of twenty citizens were posted to whom alcoholics were sent. The board of protectors was composed of twenty citizens were posted to whom alcoholics were sent.

The point at issue in New Jersey is how to determine when a man is really drunk. One of the victims of the board of protectors was a man who had been drinking. He was taken to the hospital and died. The board of protectors was composed of twenty citizens were posted to whom alcoholics were sent. The board of protectors was composed of twenty citizens were posted to whom alcoholics were sent.

How It Worked.

(From Collier's Weekly.)
With the initial filing of the income tax we discovered only two classes that had any lusty road to make by way of general complaint. The first class was made up of those with incomes large enough to be soaked. The second group came from those who were not soaked. The citizen paying a tax of $25,000 on a $50,000 income was considerably peeved. The citizen with an income of only $1,000 was equally depressed because he didn't have the $25,000. Beyond which, income conditions appeared to be eminently satisfactory to the universe at large.

GOOD PROGRESS MADE IN SPRING ST. WORK

Grading From Eighteenth to Nineteenth Streets Will Start Very Soon.

Considerable progress is being made by the committee of citizens and property owners in the negotiations for certain rights-of-way in Spring street. The committee report that they have met with very little objection or obstacles, and within a few days will have the project in complete shape.

That work of grading Spring street from Eighteenth to Nineteenth will be started at an early date. The general council, at its meeting last Monday, adopted the recommendations of the street committee that the Spring street work be placed on the list to be done by the county convicts. This action, on the part of council, removed every obstacle, and the next thing to be done now is for the county to assign a force of convicts to work.

At the intersection of Spring and Sixteenth streets it will be necessary to shut off at least 100 feet of street on the northwest corner, and at other points some changes and readjustments will have to be made.

WILLIE LAWSON DIES

James Henson, Alleged Slayer, Is Under Arrest.

Willie Lawson, who was shot in the chest, the bullet severing the spinal column, Saturday night in the barber shop at 1500 Mitchell street, died at the Grady hospital Sunday night. The body was taken to Harry G. Pooler's chapel, where a coroner's inquest will be held.

James Henson, charged with doing the shooting, while on a drunken spree, it is said, and afterwards made good his escape, was caught early Sunday morning on Mitchell street, near his way to the terminal station. Sergeant Luck shot the young man, who stated that he was on his way to take a train out of the city. Henson denied doing the shooting.

HUNTER MAKES ADDRESS TO FEDERAL PRISONERS

Brigadier General R. Hunter, the head prison chaplain of the Salvation Army of America, addressed the prisoners at the Federal prison Sunday morning along the lines of "delivering the goods," as men under the best and worst circumstances. He told them to be good and do good.

The Salvation Army has Brighter Days leagues in most of the prisons of the country, and this one at the Atlanta prison is composed of sixty-eight men. General Hunter, when he spoke, was other inmates of the prison who declared their desire to join the league.

The national officers of the Brighter Days league ever keep in touch with the branch at Atlanta, and no member of the league is allowed to leave the prison after that, and it is ever pointed out to the men that the league is a "brighter day" for the men in the prison.
